Hansel and Gretel At Wheelwright On December 6

Humperdinck's classic play, "Hansel and Gretel" will be presented by Opera Carolina, Southeast's largest musical theater company, at USC Coastal Carolina College on Tuesday, December 6 at 8 pm in the Wheelwright Auditorium.

Opera Carolina has received rave reviews for its presentation of the fairy tale, "Hansel and Gretel." The familiar story involves a brother and sister, who live with their mother in an impoverished state while the father is away from home trying to find a way to make a living. The children are then banished to the woods by a frustrated mother. All ends well, when the family reunites at the end, but not before Hansel and Gretel have an adventure in the woods, which includes witches and gingerbread houses.

Opera Carolina's home base is in Charlotte. The company is a member of OPERA America, Inc. and is funded in part, by the National Endowment for the Arts, and the Arts and Science Council of Charlotte-Mecklenburg County. The North Carolina Arts Council recognizes Opera Carolina as a statewide arts resource and provides grant assistance from funds appropriated by the North Carolina General Assembly. Opera Carolina tours to member states under the auspices of the Southern Arts Federation.

The performance is sponsored by the Wheelwright Council for the Arts.

Auditions Scheduled For "Girl Crazy"

Auditions for Girl Crazy will be held Sunday, December 4 and Monday, December 5 from 5 to 10 pm, and Tuesday, December 6 from 5 to 8 pm in the Fine Arts Little Theater.

Girl Crazy, a musical stage review by George Gershwin which debuted "I Got Rhythm" in 1930, will be directed by Carolyn Cox, associate professor of music, and Linda Hollandsworth, instructor of English and speech.

The cast for this presentation by the Coastal Carolina Theater requires both men and women singers and tap dancers. Persons interested in auditioning should prepare a vocal solo or dance routine. An accompanist will be provided.

The debut performance of the musical is set for Friday, February 24 at 8 pm in Wheelwright Auditorium. Performances will continue on Saturday, February 25 at 8 pm, and Sunday, February 26 at 2:30 pm.

For more information, contact Carolyn Cox, Ext. 2513 or Linda Hollandsworth, Ext. 2439.

Writer's Group To Meet December 6

The "Writer's Group," a new association at USC Coastal Carolina College, will meet Tuesday, December 6 at 7 pm in the Student Center, Room 204 at the college. Monthly meetings will continue the first Tuesday of each month.

The group, sponsored by Sigma Tau Delta honor society, will serve as a forum for writers, both amateur and professional, to share ideas, respond to one another's material, and to meet and hear writers from other areas.

Area writers of all genres and those interested in writing are invited to attend.

For more information, contact Charles Potter at 449-3239 during afternoon hours or Tom Hardee, president of Sigma Tau Delta, 448-1481, 347-3161 or 546-0234, Ext. 2933 between 8:30 am and 5 pm Monday through Friday.

Robby Benson To Speak on Campus December 5

Actor Robby Benson will speak to Coastal students, faculty and staff in Wheelwright Auditorium, Monday, December 5 from 1:30 to 2:30 pm. Seats will be available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

At 7:30 pm that evening, Benson will lecture in Wheelwright Auditorium as part of the Kimbel Lecture Series, which is free and open to the public.

Benson, a film actor since his fifteenth birthday, is also a writer, producer, director, and composer of film scores. His acting credits include One on One, Jeremy, The Chosen, Ice Castles, Tribute (with Jack Lemmon), and Harry and Son (with Paul Newman). He wrote the screenplay for Jeremy as well as One on One. Benson just completed post production on Crack in the Mirror which he also directed and in which he stars.

Benson was Coastal's commencement speaker in May of 1988 and received an honorary doctorate of fine arts from USC. This year, he is artist-in-residence at USC-Columbia and is teaching a year-long course in filmmaking. During the spring semester in Columbia, he will direct a professional feature film, Modern Love, which he wrote.

Tickets for the evening lecture are available at the Wheelwright box office. Tickets are not required for the afternoon program.

Career Placement Office Aids in Job Search

A full-time career is the prize all graduating seniors hope to claim. The pay-off for four or more years of academic work is a major related, entry level (or better) position that pays well and provides job satisfaction.

Seniors are encouraged to develop a Credentials File in the Placement Office to support their Job Search. The Credentials File includes references, data sheets/ resume and other supporting information. Along with the job information systems, the Credential File helps students get the job they want.

Successful job seekers prepare well for the Job Search. Preparation includes: 1) Self-Assessment: know whether you prefer to work with persons, data or things; know if you want an urban or rural lifestyle; know if job security, high income or variety in job tasks is more important to you. 2) Skills assessment: be realistic about your skills level; look at your problem-solving, interpersonal and communication skills as well as major content knowledge. 3) Job Title knowledge: know which jobs match to the personality/skills you have identified as your own 4) Company Research: know who hires entry-level majors in your field.

The Career Placement Office assists seniors in preparing for the Job Search by developing the Credential File. The Placement

Office provides resume writing and interview skills development workshops. Three employment information programs provide students with specific job data:

Job Posting - Placement Office - Student Center - 206
Open-File Resume Searches - Matches Student to Opportunities

On-Campus Recruitment - Scheduled for March and April, 1989

Completing the academic process and earning a degree does not guarantee any graduate a good job. Each person makes the career opportunity a reality by paying attention to the process of the Job Search. Start early. Start now!

International Student Helps To Enrich Campus Culture

By Debbie Nelson
Assistant Editor

We here at Coastal can feel proud to know we are an internationally recognized institution. Amongst us are students from places such as West Germany, Australia, Iceland, Holland, Africa, and Thailand, just to name a few. It is important that we get to know our international students and the various backgrounds and cultures they enrich our campus with. In this and future issues, one of these unique students will be spotlighted in order to acquaint and educate us with them.

Coastal's new, and very valuable, edition to the Tennis Team is Thomas Alexander Mende from Wiesbaden, West Germany. (Wiesbaden is where American hostages from Beirut and Tehran have been hospitalized after their release.) Previously attending the University of Mainz, in Mainz, West Germany, Thomas began classes here in August. Dr. Al Hall and Dr. Thomas Isekenegebe of the foreign language department caught wind of his presence and installed him in the Foreign Language Lab (Acen. 7) to assist in operations of the lab and most importantly, to tutor German students.

Thomas' reasons for coming to America were to learn to speak English better and to look for new experiences in life. He felt that living in Myrtle Beach could better his education of America because of the rich culture in this area of the United States. When asked why he wanted to attend Coastal he replied, "It's a small and personable university where you're not just another number in the crowd. You can ask your professors questions and receive one-on-one attention. Also, Coastal is next to the ocean, and it has a fantastic tennis team; I can play tennis, which is my hobby, while attending a university."

As far as the cultural differences between his homeland, West Germany, and the U.S., he isn't too thrilled about our diets - no junk food for Thomas! Our "discotheque" scene felt odd to him also, "People just dance in big groups, not male and female together." When speaking of our beverage selection, he comments, "Nothing compares to the taste of a German beer."

"Getting used to American life was very, very different. It took me months to get used to it. I miss my theatres in Germany. You can't just go to the theatre - you have to wait for a certain scheduled date." Although adapting to changes of his cultural favorites has been difficult, he says he appreciates Coastal's cultural program, "It's commendable."

When asked about the Tennis Team he said with much enthusiasm, "It's a strong team that plays very good tennis. Last year the team won the Big South Conference championship. This year it's even stronger - three new very strong players have joined the team." Of course Thomas is one of those players. He says the team would enjoy having more people come to the games and would like to gain more support from students. The first regular season match will be sometime in the spring (a date will be announced at a later time).

Thomas' goals for the future include vacationing to California for Christmas (his first time on the West coast), attending graduate school at Memphis State University, and eventually landing a job in a high-management position for an American Airlines. He remarks, "I really enjoy travel."

His parting words were, "I think America should be more involved, especially here on campus and in student activities. There needs to be more of a feeling of identification of students to Coastal."

(For more information on the Foreign Language Lab or German tutoring, stop by the lab at Acen. 7.)

In Remembrance - John F. Kennedy

By Jeff Kithianis
Staff Columnist

There are not many people in college today that are old enough to remember the significance of the date November 22, 1963. But, as the 25th anniversary of this date approaches, more and more young people will come to realize its importance and come to know the courage and dignity of the man who died on that day twenty-five years ago. On November 22, 1963, President John Fitzgerald Kennedy was assassinated while in a motorcade traveling through the streets of Dallas. However, Kennedy's ideas of the prosperity of all people under the American flag and the greatness of the American democracy did not die with him on that day, a quarter of a century ago. They remain with us today, and they are as strong and as persistent as the American dream itself.

Anyone who is old enough to remember that day will never forget it. Pictures remain emblazoned in their minds. Pictures of Jacqueline Kennedy walking alongside her husband's casket still clad in the pink, blood-stained dress remain. Pictures of Lyndon Johnson being sworn in as President on Air Force One remain. And pictures of people around the world mourning as they watched six white horses carry the President's body from Washington to Arlington remain. Not since the death of Franklin Roosevelt has the world mourned so much for an American President.

But on November 22, 1988, we will not look back in time to remember the bad things of the untimely death of John Kennedy. Instead, we will look back at the strength and courage of this noble American. His energetic charisma and dreams of American greatness have and will be an inspiration to what Kennedy saw as the greatest American resource, our children. His visions and ideas have become history. His name will remain in the memories of Americans for generations to come. For as long as there is breath left in the American Dream, there will be a place for the memory of John Kennedy.

Even if you are not old enough to remember November 22, 1963, take a moment on November 2, 1988, and think about JFK and what he did for the greatness of the American people, and in the words of Kennedy, himself, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country."

None of the Above

A few months ago, a public opinion survey found that people had changed their views since Ronald Reagan was elected in 1980.

In those days, people said they wanted less government. A more recent survey said they wanted more services from the government.

What about the other two choices? We could have a larger and more expensive government providing less service. Some people would say that is what we have seen for the past generation at least.

Couldn't we also have less government and more service? Do you remember the first calculators. They cost $100 or more. Now you can get much smaller, better models for less than half the price.

What is the secret? Why are we getting better service for much less money?

We are often told that more government is needed because our world is so much more complicated. Computers are also complex. Why are they getting cheaper?

Costs have come down and services have gone up in the computer industry because a great deal of talent has been applied to finding a better way of getting the job done.

When a better way was found, it was applied as quickly as possible. More people were served, the service was better, and the cost was lower.

Next time we are asked if we want more government or less service, perhaps we should answer "none of the above." ☆

Two Parties?

Most of us believe only two candidates are running for President, but in fact as many as two dozen will appear on ballots in one state or another.

Those who met to create our nation made no provision for political parties. In the election of 1788, George Washington had no party. He was elected without opposition.

After eight years in office, Washington, in the Philadelphia Daily American Advertiser in September 1796, warned against political parties.

A group calling themselves Federalists wanted a stronger government in Washington. The Democratic-Republicans thought the states should keep more power.

Washington's advice about parties was ignored. In the December election, Federalist John Adams defeated Democratic-Republican Thomas Jefferson.

ELECTION '88

Why Dukakis Lost in '88

George Bush earned his victory over Michael Dukakis by a skillful campaign waged with military precision.

Dukakis, ahead early in the campaign by 30 points, failed to seize the initiative. He disappeared from the battlefield to tour the countryside.

Dukakis failed to concentrate on his opponent's weak points. Had he done so early, he might have chosen the battleground and gained a clear advantage. His hesitation let Bush choose when and where he would mount his attacks.

By challenging every facet of the Reagan-Bush record, Dukakis wasted limited resources without securing a single important objective. In contrast, Bush hit again and again at small weaknesses in the Dukakis record.

The Dukakis forces failed to maneuver quickly as opportunities presented themselves or attacks were mounted against the candidate.

Bush brilliantly used the element of surprise, raiding Boston harbor and appearing again with Boston police, while the Dukakis forces were predictable—an easy target.

The surprise attacks succeeded in part because the Dukakis forces had not identified their own weak points, nor designed an effective defense. Dukakis failed to attack first on the issue of crime, and when attacked, he retreated. His inaction permitted Bush to drive the attack home with renewed force.

The Dukakis approach was too complex, spread too thinly, with too little clear direction. Because he failed to simplify his campaign, he left himself vulnerable to a simple and clear campaign against him.

Final victory requires unity, but a disorganized campaign and Jesse Jackson's virtual disappearance from the campaign, doomed the Dukakis effort.

During the next four years, our new President must protect the nation and lead it in an endless series of challenges. His success in the 1988 campaign proves him worthy of that role. If the American people unify behind him, they will assure his success in the battles to come. ☆

What A Great Day For "Freedom of Choice"

Well, it was a great election day as far as the weather goes. The sun was shining and the temperature was in the comfort zone. Then, suddenly, the day changed.

As I got to the voting booths at my assigned precinct, I was informed that I could not cast a write-in vote for the presidential office. The joke was that no one knew for sure at first if this was possible. The man in charge says, "No, you can't do that..." as he turns to someone else "...can you?" "No, I don't think so," someone says. Then they look in one of the computerized voting booths to the "write-in" column, and sure enough, there is no button allotted on the corresponding line for presidential office.

I was very angry! I had planned to vote for "None of the Above." Why? Because I felt that both the Democratic and Republican candidates were likely to get our country in trouble. The other two choices, the Independent and Libertarian candidates, I had never heard of and thus could not vote for them with any rationality.

Oh, I didn't just look at Dukakis and Bush and say, "I don't like them." The issues they both stand for (or don't stand for) made it easy.

Mr. Dukakis appealed to me with his ideas on social services and on budget reduction. (I know he would probably raise taxes, but I feel we can't afford to keep stringing it out and have other countries buy up America.) But in my opinion, he fell way short on foreign policy (if he even had a foreign policy). Also the way he handled his campaign, not listening to his advisors, showed me he was likely to make some impulsive decisions.

Vice-President Bush appealed to me with his experience with foreign policy. (I think this is crucial with the arms reduction going on between the USSR and ourselves.) That's all of his good points in my opinion. His ideas on the budget are absurd and he wants to keep the money in the pockets of the rich.

So, cross them both off my list. But can I state my opinion with a "None of the Above." No.

They start talking to me about the Electoral College. In effect each party has selected the number electorates that each state is allowed. So if the candidate wins by majority in the "popular vote" he carries all the "electoral votes."

Well that's fine, but I still haven't stated my opinion. If I don't vote for a Presidential candidate, then my opinion is not heard and it appears that I don't care. That is not the case at all. If I vote for a candidate, it appears that I think they are capable of running this country. Well, I don't think this either.

So, I get mad. I vote for the Libertarian candidate I know nothing about. I think it is wrong, but I wanted to vote.

So everyone I tell this to asks me, "What do you think would happen if No-one was elected President?" Well, that is simple.

First, the way it would happen (if you could vote this way and a majority did) is that the electoral votes would not be cast for each state that had the majority vote of "None of the Above." If enough states followed, then no candidate could get the required number of electoral votes.

Then Congress would have to meet and extend the current President's term or place some appropriate high ranking official, if the President in office declined, in the office until another election could be held. (It would be interesting to say the least.) We would survive it.

I don't think any of this could or would actually happen. I'm still wondering where my opinion went in this whole thing. Doesn't the Constitution say "Freedom of Choice?" Well, my choice and anyone like it just got stepped on. I don't like it!

LADY CHANTS TIP OFF NEW SEASON

GINA MARKLAND
Head Coach

Gina Markland enters her third season as the head coach of the Lady Chants. The Asheville North Carolina native, received her B.S. in Physical Education from Appalachian State in 1979, and in 1986, earned her master's degree from UNC-Greensboro. Prior to taking charge of the Coastal program, Markland served as a graduate assistant coach at Western Carolina University. At Western Carolina, she worked toward a graduate degree in Education Administration.

Before going to Western Carolina, Coach Markland spent four years teaching and coaching at her alma mater, T.C. Roberson High School in Skyland, North Carolina. At T.C. Roberson, she was an assistant coach for both women's basketball and volleyball. She gained a great deal of coaching experience under Rich Sizemore with the basketball program, and Carole Ball with volleyball. During her playing days, Markland earned four varsity letters at Appalachian State, and aided the team to a second round berth in the AIAW National Basketball Tournament. She played for Dr. Judy Clark, who is currently the Women's Athletic Director at Appalachian State.

As a prepster at T.C. Roberson, she lettered four years in basketball and three years in volleyball and track. Markland was selected to the All-Conference team in volleyball and in track during her junior and senior years. She was chosen as the Best All-Around Athlete at the school in her junior year.

DEBBIE CORNELL

Senior Guard 5'7 132 Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Debbie transferred to Coastal Carolina last year, from North Greenville Junior College. She started at point guard for the Lady Chants last season, and was selected as the team's MVP. Debbie lead the team in assists with an average of 5 per game, and was the team's third leading scorer, averaging 11.2 points per game. Her assist total was the third highest in the Big South Conference last season. In high school, Debbie starred at nearby Socastee High School.

USC COASTAL CAROLINA COLLEGE BASKETBALL NOTES & QUOTES

GINA MARKLAND - Women's Basketball Coach

"We enter the season with a good nucleus returning from last year, and hope to improve on our 7-19 record. We have three starters returning in Stacy Phillips, Rhonda Grant and Debbie Cornell"

Phillips led the team last season, and was 8th in the conference in field goal percentage. Rhonda Grant was the team's leading rebounder and also led the Big South Conference averaging 10.3 rebounds per game. Cornell, the team MVP last season, returns as the top play-maker for the Lady Chants. Her 130 assists (5/game) were tops for the team and third best in the Big South Conference.

"We were set back by the loss of Mary Perry, who suffered an anterior cruciate (knee) injury during the pre-season. Mary was a returning starter who average 13 points and 7 rebounds a game for us last year. Other than Mary's injury, our practices have been going well. Our players work well together and our shooting seems to be improved."

Perry, a senior from Hopkins, South Carolina, lead the team in blocked shots and finished third in the Big South Conference in that category. She started for Coach Markland her sophomore and junior seasons.

"We have some newcomers who will have to play for us early. Holly Bottar, a freshman, was Co-Player of the Year in Ohio last season. She will give us a great deal of outside scoring, and must be able to help on defense also."

Bottar, from Matthews High School in Vienna, Ohio, led her team to the State Championship last season. Holly averaged 17.5 points per game. Other newcomers are Asia Berkley, who also led her team to a state title, Stacy Hughes, and Lori Mann. Berkley, a 5'8 freshman, was the team captain for Annadale High School, which won the Division III Virginia State Championship. Hughes, a point guard from Northeastern High School in Springfield, Ohio averaged 12.2 points and 5.7 assists per game for a team that finished 20-6. Lori Mann is a 6'0 junior college transfer from Clark Technical College in Columbus, Ohio.

"We are smaller, but quicker this year than last. Depth will still be a problem for us because of our injury situation. We have not gotten out of the rebuilding stage yet. In fact we are in the 'building' stage, since this is only our third season in Division I. Our goal is to see improvement as the season progresses...To finish in the middle of the conference will be a step forward for our program...We are still 2-3 years away from being one of the strongest teams."

"Our schedule is competitive, and that will force us to play our best. In the conference, there are a lot of teams which will be improved...I like to think that we have improved to the place where we can play with them. Radford and Campbell should be the teams to beat, and Winthrop may be tough."

Instead of saving a little time, he killed a little boy.

He wasn't paying attention to the road as he went speeding through the neighborhood on the way home.

It really doesn't matter why he chose to ignore the speed limit, because now a child is dead.

He had developed an attitude problem. Like many other drivers in South Carolina he thought he owned the road.

Every year thousands of people are killed, crippled, and disfigured on South Carolina's roads. The major causes are SPEEDING, DRIVING UNDER THE INFLUENCE, FAILURE TO WEAR SAFETY BELTS, FAILURE TO YIELD RIGHT-OF-WAY, AND FAILURE TO OBEY WARNING SIGNS.

Don't make the same mistake. You can bet your life he wishes he hadn't. Because instead of saving a few minutes, he cost a child's life.

Hedgepath Named Chair Of Coastal Carolina College Board Of Visitors

William Hedgepath Jr., president of William F. Hedgepath and Associates in Conway and Sun-South Properties, has been named chair of the recently formed Board of Visitors for the School of Education and Health Professions at USC Coastal Carolina College.

The Board of Visitors is an organization comprised of local individuals, involved in business, professional and community arenas. The board's functions are to strengthen ties between the business community and faculty and students of the School of Education and Health Professions; to provide advice and consultation to college administrators on sources of financial support for various projects and activities of the School of Education and Health Professions; to represent the Waccamaw community and the state by providing service programs and activities; and the offer guidance and input for the development of quality programs in the preparation of graduates for employment in specialized professional areas.

According to Dr. Dennis Wiseman, dean of the School of Education and Health Professions, Hedgepath was selected as chair of the board based on his strong business skills and character.

"Bill has excellent judgement and leadership skills, as well as a genuine concern for people," said Wiseman. "He is a giving person who has strong ties with both the community and Coastal. He will serve as a great resource for me and other members of the board and the college in working on future projects, programs and activities."

Hedgepath said he was thrilled to be a part of Coastal. "Coastal has a dear spot in my heart," he said. "I was attending the University of South Carolina when my father died, and if it weren't for Coastal I may have had to drop out of school. I attended Coastal when the classes were being held at Conway High School after their regular school hours. We are all very proud of Coastal and the educational impact it has made in the community. I am honored to be asked to chair this

The Board of Visitors' members include: Harry Bates, CPA with Bates, Buie, Lindsay, Evans, and Rabon in Myrtle Beach; Mike Battle, PA with Lovelace and Battle in Conway; Larry Biddle, assistant principal at Conway High School; Sam Frink, president of Conway Ford; Fran Gilbert, vice president of administration of CSI Group, Inc. in Conway; Dr. Susan Haskins, anesthesiologist at Conway Hospital; William Hedgepath Jr., president of William F. Hedgepath and Associates in Conway; Billy Holliday, co-partner of Blackwater Partnership in Aynor; Richard Howard, partner of Waccamaw Land and Timber in Myrtle Beach; Dr. Brian Keay, district medical director of the Waccamaw Public Health District in Myrtle Beach; David Singleton, president of Singleton and Singleton in Myrtle Beach; and Ralph Wilson, deputy solicitor of the Horry County Solicitor's Office in Conway.

Coastal Administrative Officer Appears In Book For War Achievements

William J. Baxley, Jr., Associate Chancellor for College Advancement at USC Coastal Carolina College, is featured with a photo in The Illustrated History of Chargers - The Vietnam War, written by F. Clifton Berry, Jr., a military officer who served as operations officer of the 196th Light Infantry Brigade in Vietnam from 1967 to 1968. The book was published in June of 1988 by Bantam Books.

Baxley is pictured in the book at the time he served as commander of the First Battalion, 6th Infantry in the Vietnam War. The photo caption explains that combat fatalities were kept low in the infantry because Baxley insisted that his men wear flak jackets and steel helmets at all times.

Baxley said that he first discovered his photo was in the book when his sister-in-law, who lives in New Mexico, sent him a copy. Her husband, General Richard T. Knowles also appears in the book.

According to Baxley, the photo brought back a lot of memories.

"It provided a quick and vivid return to history when I saw the photograph," said Baxley. "It brought back the memory of friends, both officers and enlisted men, and how they were such great Americans."

Baxley has won numerous awards and recognition for his achievements while serving in the army. The list includes: The Silver Star for Gallantry in Action; The Distinguished Flying Cross for Heroism while Participating in Aerial Flight; The Bronze Star Medal for Heroism in Ground Combat; The Air Medal for Heroism While Participating in Aerial Flight; and The Legion of Merit, First Oak Leaf Cluster for Exceptionally Meritorious Conduct in the Performance of Outstanding Services.

The awards were achieved between the years of 1967 to 1968.

"It is a surprise when someone says you are going to get an award for just doing your job," said Baxley. "I care about people, and I think if you do care, you take actions that you don't have to think about—you just do it. An example would be if you were to see a child drowning, then you try to save that child."

Baxley enlisted in the army in 1944 when he was 17 years old, and in 1950 he graduated from West Point.

In his career, Baxley served as an officer in several command and staff positions which include: infantry platoon leader, infantry company commander, staff officer, infantry battalion commander, instructor in infantry school, Army Pacific staff officer, Army general staff officer, staff officer in the Office of Secretary of Defense, and resident faculty of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces.

Baxley said that much of his character and his life have been shaped according to the experiences he had in the Vietnam War and in the Army.

"I believe that many of my characteristics were formed during this time in my life," said Baxley. "Work habits, and my philosophy of life are partly based on that time period."
